

Feedback to preschoolers

Vocabulary

Ex. 1. Complete the sentences with the given words.

break, All Together Now, afternoon, book walk, depart, accomplish, accident, absent, attention, activity, breakfast, cause, assign, crucial, aboard

You must be careful in the kitchen to avoid an _____ (1).

The school bus will _____ (2) promptly at 3:00 PM.

Please explain why you were _____ (3) from school yesterday.

Eating a healthy _____ (4) is important for children's learning.

Let's take a _____ (5) and go play outside for a while.

Attending parent-teacher conferences is _____ (6) for your child's education.

It's time for our _____ (7), let's find a cozy spot to read together.

In the _____ (8), we'll have an arts and crafts activity.

I will _____ (9) you a reading assignment for homework tonight.

All students should be _____ (10) the bus before it leaves.

Science experiments are a fun and educational _____ (11) for kids.

With hard work and dedication, we can _____ (12) great things.

Pay _____ (13) during the lesson so you can answer questions later.

Let's all sing " _____ (14)" as a fun way to end class.

Lack of sleep can _____ (15) difficulty concentrating in school.

Reading

Ex. 1. Read the text.

Giving feedback to preschoolers can be a rewarding experience. At this age, children are very curious and eager to learn. They seek approval and love when they are recognized for their efforts. Giving clear and positive feedback helps them grow and feel confident.

When giving feedback, it is important to be specific. Instead of saying, "Good job," say, "I like how you colored within the lines." This way, the child knows exactly what they did right. It helps them understand which behavior to repeat in the future.

Another important tip is to focus on effort rather than results. Preschoolers are still learning and developing their skills. By praising their hard work, like saying, "You tried really hard on this puzzle," you encourage them to keep trying, even if they don't get it right the first time.

It's also helpful to ask questions and engage with their work. Show interest by asking, "Can you tell me about your drawing?" This makes the child feel valued and gives them a chance to express their thoughts and feelings.

Positive language is more effective than negative language. Instead of saying, "Don't run," you can say, "Walk, please." Offering choices is another good strategy. For instance, you can say, "Would you like to clean up the toys now or after story time?" This gives the child a sense of control and encourages cooperation.

Lastly, remember to be patient. Preschoolers may not always respond the way you expect, but with consistent and positive feedback, you can guide them towards better behavior and skills.

Giving feedback to preschoolers is not just about correction, but also about encouraging and supporting them to be their best selves.

Ex. 2. Answer the questions.

1. Why is it important to be specific when giving feedback to preschoolers?
2. How can focusing on effort rather than results benefit preschoolers?
3. What is the significance of engaging with a child's work when giving feedback?
4. Why is positive language more effective than negative language in providing feedback to preschoolers?
5. How does offering choices help in giving feedback to preschoolers?
6. Why is patience important when giving feedback to preschoolers?
7. What is the overall goal of giving feedback to preschoolers according to the text?

Communication

Ex. 1. Make sentences using the following words:

1. enjoy/reading/stories
2. favorite/story/tell
3. read/books/kids
4. reading/improve/language
5. love/reading/important
6. picture/books/popular
7. make/stories/engaging
8. different/voices/make
9. props/telling/story
10. reading/spark/imagination